Don't tell me to whisper, I'll keep singing strong.

Oh freedom to gather, all siblings together,

With pride and without fear of pain that will come.

A rainbow, a banner unfurled in the cold air -

Hurts no one to be there, why tear the words down?

(Chorus)

I don't understand why my love has to scare you,

It doesn't concern you, it's just me and her.

I don't know how you bear it, this whole world is tearing itself into pieces

And this is your care.

(Chorus)

Oh Freedom – believing this world that we live in

Through every division the same blood will run.

I can feel my heart beating, I know that I'm breathing,

There's nothing so different between you and me.

(Chorus)

Written in support of the LGBT community in Russian in 2011, when the equivalent of our section 28 bill was proposed by the Russian government. Similar bills keep being proposed reducing the rights of and increasing incidents of violence against the LGBT community in Russia, and our solidarity remains with them.
